Letter to our Frimley children – Week 4

28th January 2021

Hi everyone,

How are you all doing? I hope you enjoyed the snow on Sunday. It was lovely to see children out playing near my house, still in their family bubbles of course! I'm very lucky as there's a big hill and woods opposite my house so it's great for sledging down. We still had some snow here in school on Monday – have a look at the pictures we posted on Twitter as the school looked so beautiful with a white covering! It did make it very slippery and icy though so, although the children in school were allowed outside at break and lunch, we all had to be really careful. It's all washed away now, although there are a few big balls of snow dotted around Frimley and the local area – I'm guessing they are the remains of the snowmen that were built!

Here's the next part of me reading 'The Truth Pixie' for you: <https://youtu.be/gnEmXWqyjTs>
If you didn't hear last week's, then please ask your parents to find the link in the letter that I wrote to you all last Thursday. Hope you're enjoying it – I am starting to worry that telling the truth is not going to end up going so well for our little pixie!

I hope you are all still working as hard at home as the children in school are. I know this is hard on everyone, especially as we don't yet know when we'll all be back together in school again. Make sure you take time to look after yourself: get outside and enjoy the fresh air or play games with your families.

One of our parents who works at Frimley hospital has told us that they are accepting scanned pictures to decorate and cheer up their wards. If you fancy producing some art work then please drop it into school and we can arrange for it to be scanned and sent to the hospital.

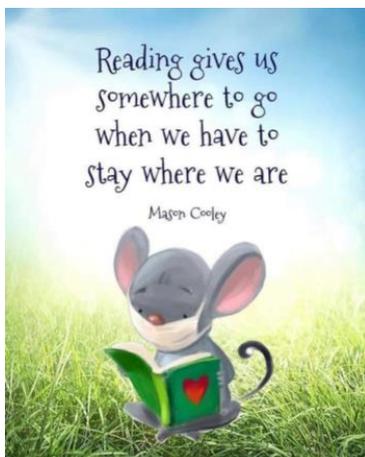

I've decided to set you a little book scavenger project, which is on the next page. You don't have to do it but if you'd like to join in then please ask your parents to email me with what you have found; you can present your answers/responses however you'd like – be creative! Your parents can send your email to the usual school email and then the lovely ladies who work in the office will forward it on to me.

Book scavenger hunt

I'd like you to find:

- An animal in a book
- The word 'spring' in a book
- Someone helping someone in a book
- A picture of the sun in a book
- A book that makes you laugh
- A bug in a book
- Someone sleeping in a book
- A character eating in a book
- A pet in a book
- Someone playing sport in a book
- A superhero in a book
- A bike in a book

Good luck, I can't wait to see what you find.

Bye for now and keep being your amazing selves.

From Mrs Wright
